

ADVERBS

There are tons of words
For things you can do
But then there are other words
For HOW you can do them too
Yeah these words are called adverbs
Let's take a glance
At some of these words, for example
Say you want to dance...

You could do it slowly or quickly
Loosely or stiffly
You can do it any old way you like it
(yeah)
You could do it calmly or madly
Oddly or badly
Now matter which way you dance
The word used to describe it
Is called an adverb
It's called an adverb
A verb is what you do
An adverb is how you do it
It might sound tough
But there ain't nothin' to it
Adverbs, adverbs

Adverbs are everywhere
And they're not hard to find
They like to hang out near a verb
And they tend to end in L-Y
They can even tell you when or where
A verb is taking place
Let's take a look at another example:
Say you want to paint...

You could do it nicely or neatly
Daily or weekly
You can do it any old way you like it
You could do it gently or swiftly
Complexly or simply
Now matter which way you paint
The word used to describe it
Is called an adverb
It's called an adverb
A verb is what you do
It might sound tough
But there ain't nothin' to it
Adverbs, adverbs

You could do it slowly or quickly
Aloud or silently
You can do it any old way you like it
You could do it promptly or proudly
Softly or loudly
Now matter which way you read
Is called an adverb
